

HUNTER JOHNSON

hunterfjohnson@gmail.com ◇ (952)-451-0735 ◇ Website ◇ LinkedIn

PROFESSIONAL SUMMARY:

Linguistics PhD researcher with +8 years of owning various end-to-end qualitative and quantitative research projects. Expertise in UX research methods like: interviews, surveys, statistical analysis, A/B testing, etc. After turning my research into narratives that drive decisions in theoretical, computational linguistics, I am excited to transition into UX research to apply these skills to user-oriented decision-making and research and approach human psychology from a new perspective.

EXPERIENCE

Researcher

UCLA & UMN

Minneapolis, MN & Los Angeles, CA

September 2018 – Present

- develop and own an original, impactful, and community-oriented research program with indigenous language collaborators of North and Latin America (Guarani, Ojibwe, K'iche', and Pa'itavyterã) consisting of various smaller end-to-end projects
- carefully design and conduct in-depth, 1:1, and group interviews, experiments, and surveys using a variety of methodologies (A/B testing, forced choice tasks, production tasks, contextual inquiries, etc.) for both in-situ and virtual fieldwork settings with native speaker collaborators to collect and process +200 hours of recordings containing +5000 tokens of spoken language data
- synthesize, manage, and analyze large data sets from low resource languages for publication (>7) and presentation (>20) at premier journals and conferences in linguistics. Translate findings into clear narratives in theoretical syntax to propose a novel model of computational heuristics (see publications on my website and portfolio for details)

Teaching Fellow

UCLA

Los Angeles, CA

September 2021 – June 2025

- design and implement innovative, learning-oriented teaching materials and curricula for college level linguistics courses, ranging from introductory courses to advanced courses across a variety of topics (8 courses; a full list is available in my academic CV)
- promote a growth-focused classroom experience for all students of diverse backgrounds with diverse learning experiences, achieve outstanding evaluations from students, professors, and coworkers alike

Community (Medical) Interpreter

ARCH Language Network

Minneapolis, MN

June 2018 – September 2021

- facilitate doctor-patient communication between Spanish speakers of various cultural backgrounds and English while maintaining and exceeding professional standards in interpreting

EDUCATION

University of California, Los Angeles

Ph.D., Linguistics

Los Angeles, CA

09/2023 – 06/2026

University of California, Los Angeles

M.A., Linguistics

Los Angeles, CA

09/2021 – 06/2023

University of Minnesota

B.A., Linguistics

Minneapolis, MN

09/2018 – 05/2021

Summa cum laude, with High Distinction, Phi Beta Kappa

SKILLS

experiment design

■■■■■

data analysis

■■■■■

Haskell

■■■■■

interviews

■■■■■

data management

■■■■■

teamwork

■■■■■

survey design

■■■■■

time management

■■■■■

R

■■■■■

A/B testing

■■■■■

public speaking

■■■■■

Python

■■■■■

LaTeX

■■■■■

criticism/feedback

■■■■■

SQL

■■■■■

PORTFOLIO AND OTHER RESOURCES

A detailed research portfolio which showcases my research in a digestible format for non-experts may be found at my website as well as my full academic CV, a list of publications, and links to my publications: hunterfjohnson.com